Hew Poel Tickets Were Counterfeited, the Signatures Forged, the Winners Filled In and the Money Collected Ahead of the Good Tickets-Once Mysterious Mispay ments Accounted For.

Almost ever since the present racing season commenced the bookmakers and pool-sellers at the several race tracks have been victim ized to the extent of hundreds of dollars by clever counterfeits of their tickets, which in the hurry of cashing in after the races have been passed unnoticed.

The success of the counterfeiters has been so uniform that the bookmakers had to take all possible precautions to prevent forgeries, and to this end had their tickets printed by the American Bank Note Company; but they discovered recently that even these were counterfeited and they were paying bets that were never made.

The counterfeiting of the American Bank
Note Company's issue of tickets has resulted disastrously to the industrious crooks who were playing the game, and they are now behind iron bars.

The chief is John D. McDonald, alias Malcolm Hall, alias Stevenson. He is known to Chief Inspector Byrne as a professional thief and was arrested for shoplifting in a Broadway store about a year ago.

colim Hall, alias Stevenson. He is known to Chief Inspector Byrne as a professional thief and was arrested for shoplifting in a Broadway store about a year ago.

He was on ball at the time of his apprehension for this offense.

He is thirty-two years of age, a bartender by occupation, and gives his residence as $23 West Forty-first street.

He is a slim, well-dressed fellow, with dark hair and eyes and a black mustache.

His companion is thirty-five years old, a rubber stamp manufacturer, residing at 256 East Fifteenth street, and is said to be known to Pinkerton's Detective Bureau as a professional crook. He gave his name when arrested as Ed Carrington, but is known also by the name of Ed Craig.

The apprehension of these crooks was brought about in this way:

President James Macdonough, of the American Bank-Note Company, communicated the fact to Inspector Byrnes that forged tickets bearing the trademark of his company had been issued and were being imposed upon the bookmakers and pool-sellers at Monmouth Park, and he detailed Detective Sergts. Hawley, Aloncle and Killilea to work up the case. Though unable to find where the forged tickets were printed, the detectives discovered that wood-cuts had been stereotyped at a place in Nassau street, and from the stereotyper learned that the engraver was Hugh Murphy, of 23 Ann street, who resides at Tompkinsville, S. I.

Goins to Murphy's place yesterday morning, Detectives Hamley and Aloncle found that Murphy had engraved the plates, and discovered two plates which McDonald and Carrington were to call for at noon. Both were counterfeits of the tickets issued by J. Cotton & Co., the bookmakers, of Church street, and the other of J. Connors & Co., whose office is in West Twenty-eighth street.

Murphy said that photographs on wood of the tickets were brought to him to be en-

Co., whose office is in West Twenty-eighted street.

Murphy said that photographs on wood of the tickets were brought to him to be engraved, and electrotypes of the wood engraving were afterwards made.

In the case of Cotton's ticket a "plug" was inserted in the centre of the plate and the name J. Cotton engraved upon it in fac simile of the original ticket.

There was also found another block with a photograph of a mutuel pool ticket to be engraved, showing that the two crooks were engaged in a wholesale swindle of the racetrack gamblers.

The detectives left the plates there and shadowed the entrance to 23 Ann street until their game arrived.

They had not long to wait, for McDonald and Carrington soon put in an appearance and were recognized from the description when they came downstairs they were caught red-handed, with the counterfeit plates in their possession.

Both men were brought before Justice Kilbreth in the Tombs Police Court this morning, where complaint was preferred by President James Macdonough and Manager Theodore H. Lee, of the American Bank-Note Company, who were accompanied by their counsel, Mr. Evarts, of Evarts, Choate & Beaman.

Justice Kilbreth directed that the com-plaint be made under section 541 of the Penal Code, which makes the possession of forged plaint be made under section 541 of the Penal Code, which makes the possession of forged plates a felony.

The modus operandi of the crooks, with their counterie a tickets was as follows:

They had their tickets printed in tints exactly like the original and would stand by a bookmaker's stand, catch the numbers of the several bets and when the announcement of the winner was made would stamp the numbers of the winning bets upon the tickets, fill in the name of the horse with blue pencil, get in the line and cash in shead of the good tickets.

Not only was the body of the ticket, with all its fancy scroll work, counterfeited, but so were the stamps of the bookmakers on the back, even to the erasure with red ink of the lack, even to the erasure with red ink of the back, even to the erasure with red ink of the back, announcing the place of business of J. Connors & Co.

When arraigned before Justice Kilbreth McDonald pleaded that he was innocent of any guity knowledge in the matter, and Engraver Murphy, who was present, said that all his negotiations were held with Carrington.

The latter pleaded not guilty, and said that as a rubber-stamp maker he was only filling an order for a customer, whose name he refused to give.

fused to give.

Both men were held without bail for exammation on Monday at 2 p. M.

There is little doubt of the guilt of Carrington, as the detectives are very certain that he is the same man who manufactured the rubber stamp with which the pool tickets were made which victimized Cotton & Co, to the tune of $600 at the Jerome Park meeting.

Morning Fire. A fire which started in the bottom of the elevator in the five-story flat at 150 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street at 4.36 o'clock this morning, caused intense alarm among the twenty families living in the building.

CROOKS WHO HAVE REAPED RICH HAR- A prompt signal brought the firemen to the scene, and they found that the flames had shot upward and were breaking through the roof. After two hours' work the firemen had extinguished the flames, which had been confined almost entirely to the elevator shaft and the roof.

Mr. Lepine, who occupied rooms on the third floor with his family, left the building at 4 o'clock, and at that time there was no fire or smoke observed in the building.

The alarm was first given by Emma Jackson, daughter of Thomas Jackson, who lives on the fifth floor. She was awakened by Mrs. James Brown, a tenant on the fifth floor, had her household goods almost entirely destroyed. She is a poor woman and her property was not insured.

The occupants of the rear rooms on the fourth, third and second floors all sustained slight damage from water. They all held insurance policies. The tenants occupying the front rooms suffered no damage.

Janitor William Beech said that he had been unable to determine how the fire originated. There had been no one near the foot of the elevator for several hours previous to the fire except Lepine, who passed by it when he went out at 4 o'clock. If there had been fire at that time Lepine would have discovered it.

The week closed in Wall street with a strong and advancing market for stocks and bonds. The bulls were in high clover on account of the brilliant crop prospects and the belief that next week will witness the consummation of the Richmond Terminal-Norfolk & Western "deal," whereby the latter will purchase from the former $6,500,000 East Ten-neasee first preferred stock. The deal includes an arrangement whereby all differences existing be-tween the leading Southern roads will be harmon-ized.

The banks lose $1,294,000 in surplus reserve this week. They now hold $96,440,400 in excess of legal requirements. The following are the com-parative figures:

Fire Commissioner Henry D. Purroy is to bid farewell to the County Democracy today. His letter resigning the leadership o the Twenty-fourth Ward organization and severing his connection with the County and Executive committees has been prepared. It will be published in the morning papers. Commissioner Purroy, in speaking to representative of THE EVENING WORLD this morning, said :

"I have written a letter resigning my membership in the County Democracy or ganization. It is now in a rough draft, and I wish to read it over before making it public, " I will not have it ready until very late this afternoon-possibly not before 5

"Do you intend to re-enter Tammany Hall?"
(Laughing.) "My letter may give you an idea of my future political adherence."
It is hinted that Commissioner Purroy's letter will be a lengthy one, and that while he will not arraign the County Democracy leaders as individuals he will find much fault with the political management of the County Democracy machine.

Police Justice Maurice J. Power, the leader of the County Democracy, does not attach much importance to Commissioner Purroy's secession. The Judge intimates in an interview that Commissioner Purroy has been estranged from the councils of the organization for some time, and the disaffection has caused little surprise and not much comment among the leaders.

Commissioner Purroy, Police Justice White and Judge Martine walked out of Tammany Hall on the evening of Nov. 26, 1881. Mr. Kelly's Discipliue Committee had picked them out "to go."

A few years previous Commissioner Purroy was the active member of the Discipline Committee that read Police Justice Maurice J. Power and ex-Mayor Cooper out of the Wigwam.

"ON TO RICHMOND."

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1888.

The Bogus Orders on Which Three Detec tives Were Very Cheaply Sold.

Detectives Cooper, McCord and Webb, of Headquarters, are undergoing the results of a harmless joke of which they are victims, and have ceased to have confidence in human nature.

Some time ago it was given out that three men were wanted to accompany the Seventy-first Regiment to Richmond, and there was a strong rivalry among the force to secure the much coveted excursion.

Cooper, McCord, Webb and Nugent made a strong fight for the order of "On to Rich-mond." Nugent's plea was that his brother fell near Richmond during the war, and if he could only visit the parish priest he would be able to put his hands on his brother's grave.

be able to put his hands on his brother's grave.

Webb's idea was that, being an amateur photographer, he could take many striking pictures which he would distribute gratis at headquarters.

The rivalry ceased by the selection of Cooper, Webb and McCord, Nugent consenting to remain here on a promise of a box of cigars.

ing to remain here on a promise of a box of cigars.

The trio of successful detectives were told that they must be at Headquarters at 5 o'clock A. M. to-day. Webb bade his new bride an affectionate farewell at Bath Beach, Cooper sent his wife to the country and Mc-Cord appeared in a new light suit, with an extra twist to his Tom Gould mustache.

They each received a letter addressed to Jack Rice, ferrymaster, Weehawken ferry, where they were to receive their transportation tickets, and started on their journey southward.

was present in custody. She is a hard-looking woman, and was very saucy.

When asked a question by Clerk Toal she ordered him to leave her alone, in loud tones. The only friend she had in court was her daughter, who is a respectable young girl and seemed to take her mother's position very much to heart. She cried continually and begged her mother to keep still when she interfered with the witnesses.

The testimony of the witnesses clearly showed that the woman Young had pushed Sullivan down the stoop, but they did not think she saw the truck coming along.

The jury rendered a verdict that Sullivan came to his death by being run over by the truck after having been pushed down the stoop by Kate Young, but they did not believe it was done maliciously.

Leonard Schmidt, the driver of the wagon, was exonerated from all blame.

The woman was committed to the Tombs without ball to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The investigation into the crooked cor tract frauds in the provision department of the Brooklyn Navy-Yard is being conducted secretly by Paymaster Robert M. Allen and Monroe Heiskell, of the Department of Jusuty Marshal Thomas Fogarty arrested Daniel Shea, a laborer under Andrew Laird on the provision floor. Information on which this arrest was made was given by a truckman who charges that Shea was in collust Laird.

Laird.

Shea was at work when arrested. He is thirty-five years old, has a family and lives in Navy street. Brooklyn. When asked if he could give bail he replied: "Not unless you will take one of my children."

Shea will be examined by United States Commissioner Mor. Commissioner Benedict, Commissioner Mor-ley having gone to the Peekskill camp as Major of the Thirteenth Regiment. Other warrants are in the hands of the Marshal, but no information is given out Marshal, but no information is given out regarding them.

Storekeeper Loomis, at the Navy-Yard, who last June discovered the crooked work which had been going on for years under the noses of his predecessors, is not a little elated at the turn affairs are taking.
Since Shea's arrest he has been constantly in conference with the District-Attorney and the Washington officials with the idea, it is thought, that he may divulge some interesting information regarding the purchase of Navy-Yard supplies which will facilitate the labors of the officials.
